This volume, in the newly launched peer-reviewed monograph series, Prehistoric Society Research Papers, is published by the Prehistoric Society with Oxbow Books. The selected papers cover a wide range of topics, and is dedicated to John Evans in celebration of his contribution to environmental archaeology, providing a glimpse of the many ways in which he has touched the lives of so many. The 20 papers cover many aspects of research he engaged in during his career; typically a number of papers relate to land snails, but a series of other aspects of prehistoric environmental archaeological and ideas of texture and social order are considered. Two papers provide key discourse in significantly developing and revising John’s work on the chalkland.

This volume brings together papers that address themes and landscapes on a variety of levels. They cover geographical, methodological and thematic areas. In some instances papers have been inspired by John’s approaches to landscape and landscape analysis and their application to new or wider areas. Others take forward, re-examine or elaborate on long held theories and interpretations, looking at new or improved datasets. As a collection, the papers in this volume provides a diverse and cohesive picture of how archaeological landscapes are viewed within current research frameworks and approaches, while also paying tribute to the innovative and inspirational work of one of the leading protagonists of environmental archaeology and the holistic approach to landscape interpretation.

The volume will contain Tabula Commemorativa that will be published in the front of the book of all those who wish to honour John, his work and contribution to environmental archaeology, conchology, and archaeological thinking. It will soon be possible to take advantage of the pre-publication offer and to honour the achievements of John G Evans by adding your name to the Tabula Commemorativa. Order forms will be available in the next issue of PAST and will be online soon.
