LAHS HISTORY FAIR 2020
Preparations are continuing for the 2020 History Fair to be held at Beaumanor Hall on 31 May, with over 30 local history groups, projects and museums confirming their attendance as exhibitors. Unlike the 2018 Fair there will be no theme for what will be displayed, allowing exhibitors to showcase the broad variety of work going on in Leicestershire’s active local history scene. In addition to exhibitors, the Record Office will be providing a dramatic introduction to the internationally significance Thomas Cook Archive, recently acquired for the people of Leicestershire. Talks will also be held on the day, and details of these plus more information about the event itself will be available nearer the time.
CAN YOU HELP?
LAHS needs a volunteer to help with the catering arrangements for lectures and allow Yolanda Courtney, the Hon Lectures Secretary, to concentrate on organising the lecture programme itself. People really appreciate the catering side of things, so this is an important but not too demanding a role that will help everything run smoothly. There are 11 lectures each year (September to May). Tea, coffee and biscuits are provided at eight lectures, when people serve themselves – so this is simply a case of making sure that these refreshments are available at these normal meetings. Three lectures have buffets catered by Fingerprints, including the AGM at The Guildhall (all other lectures are in the Victorian Gallery at New Walk Museum). We need someone to make sure that Fingerprints deliver their food and are paid, and to sort out wine for these occasions. Yolanda can provide more details of what needs to be done – and there is scope for changing some of the arrangements if you wish. If you are interested, please contact her – email yolanda.courtney@ntlworld.com, phone 0116 2120271, or speak to her at a lecture.

NEWS FROM THE LIBRARY
Members may be interested in a letter received from King Island (situated in the Bass Strait between Melbourne and Tasmania) giving details of the planned 175th anniversary commemoration of the ‘Cataraqui’ shipwreck on 4 August 1845. This was Australia’s worst civil maritime disaster, when the ship from Liverpool to Port Phillip was totally wrecked: 399 British emigrants and crew died, and nine survived. We have been informed of this as nine of the emigrants came from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, seven named Rowbottom and two named Buck. We have been invited to join the commemoration in August. Any members in that part of the world then would be welcome.

OTHER NEWS

LEICESTERSHIRE VICTORIA COUNTY HISTORY TRUST
Pam Fisher reports on a busy few months for the Leicestershire Victoria County History Trust:
Our third paperback, a history of Ibstock, will be published in 2020. Neighbouring place-names indicate that the parish was once fringed by heathland to its north and west, while Ibstock’s own place-name references an early dairy farm on this land. Garendon Abbey, near Loughborough, received gifts in the 12th century totalling over 500 a. in Ibstock, and created a large sheep farm on their enclosed estate. Unusually, the medieval church stands at the lowest point of the modern village. Framework-knitting had become important by 1811, when trade and manufacture employed almost as many families in the parish as agriculture. Ibstock’s character changed more dramatically in the later 19th century, when the coal deposits which lay beneath its soils began to be exploited. Two collieries were sunk within the parish by different owners, Ibstock colliery in 1825 and Ellistown colliery from 1873, and rapid population growth was seen between 1861 and 1931. This was accompanied by the growth of Nonconformity, already well-established in the parish, and the establishment of numerous sports teams, clubs and other societies.

Never quite a town, and eclipsed from the 1890s by its younger neighbour (Coalville), Ibstock has changed and adapted again following the closure of the mines. The renovated early cinema is now a thriving community venue, and much of the undermined farmland has been planted with young trees, to become part of the National Forest. There is therefore much in this book to interest many people. Please email pjf7@le.ac.uk if you wish to be informed of the launch event, which will probably be in the autumn.

Charnwood Roots Database

This database, containing over 6,000 pieces of information collected by volunteers, will shortly be made available to the public. They relate to all the places covered by the project (the unshaded part of this map, taken from Robert Morden’s county map of 1722). It will be possible to search for information by place, topic, keyword or any combination of these, and the data can be used by anyone for their own or a group project, we only ask for acknowledgment. The databank is now entering the final phase of testing, and should be available in the next few weeks through the updated Charnwood Roots website, at https://www.charnwoodroots.org/databank/.

Lutterworth

Research and writing up continues on our history of Lutterworth, which is currently on course for publication in 2021. We are very grateful to LAHS for their financial support.

Loughborough

We have ambitious plans to publish a history of Loughborough. This will be a major piece of work, building on some of the research done as part of Charnwood Roots. We need to raise over £80,000 to complete the research, writing and publication, but with the help of three small grants we have made a start. A volunteer project on public health improvements in Loughborough from 1840 is under way. We will also shortly be starting a piece of research on Loughborough’s medieval markets and fairs, which will tie in with the town’s planned celebrations in 2021 of the 800th anniversary of the market charter. After Easter, when our work on public health is complete, we will be recruiting further volunteers to help us to research Loughborough’s industries. In July and August 2020, some of our research into public health improvements will be on display in Loughborough’s Local Studies Library, to mark the 150th anniversary of the introduction of piped water into the town, the opening of the Fearon Fountain in Loughborough’s market place and the opening of Nanpantan reservoir. There will also be a display and event at Loughborough’s Old Rectory Museum, where Reverend Henry Fearon was living when he was stirring up Loughborough’s Guardians, Sanitary Committee and Local Board to take some action to provide clean water and sewerage to Loughborough’s inhabitants.
VCH 120
As some readers will know, we have also marked the 120th anniversary of the founding of the VCH project by filling a ‘Big Red Box’ with objects representing the county’s histories. You can see details of what we chose in our September 2019 Newsletter at https://www.history.ac.uk/sites/default/files/file-uploads/2019-10/LVCHT_Newsletter_2019.pdf

ARCHAEOLOGY
Wendy Scott, former Finds Liaison Officer for the Leicestershire Portable Antiquities Scheme (PAS), contributes another article in her series about objects on display in local museums that were acquired under the Treasure Act 1996.

BOSWORTH EAGLE OR FALCON BADGE
This splendid bird is part of a silver-gilt livery badge, which would have been worn by a high ranking member of a household of one of the main players in the Battle of Bosworth. Along with the Bosworth Boar and the lead shot scatter, it was one of the key objects found during the Bosworth Survey that helped us locate the Battlefield. Members of the survey team have been working since it was found with experts trying to identify it. It was originally identified as an eagle with a snake in its mouth, a symbol of good over evil used since Roman times. Kevin Schürer (Leicester University) believes that it is a fettered falcon and is part of the livery of Arthur Plantagenet. He was the illegitimate son of King Edward IV, and the falcon’s head facing right (the wrong way) is a symbol of illegitimacy. Edward IV was king before his brother Richard and was the father of the ‘princes in the tower’. There is no record of Arthur being present at Bosworth, but he could have been of fighting age, being born between 1461 and 75 - or perhaps one of his close household fought in his place?

We know he survived and served in the court of his half-sister Elizabeth of York, and became an Esquire of the King’s Bodyguard to his nephew Henry VIII, to whom he was a close companion. He died of a heart attack in 1540, two days after being released from the Tower, after being held (incorrectly) on suspicion of treason over Calais, where he was born and had been Constable. Found by the Bosworth Survey team 2006, the badge can be seen at Bosworth Battlefield Heritage Centre. PAS Ref No. LEIC-4405A7, Leicestershire Museums Accession Number X.A244.2007.
A HISTORICAL FOOTNOTE

In September 1862 the French high rope walker and acrobat Charles Blondin made two appearances in Leicester, on land in Campbell Street where a platform accommodating 2000 people was erected. According to the advert in the Leicester Journal on 5 September 1862, entrance cost 1s. 6d. or 1s., or 6d. for the fireworks and concert after the performance. As well as the ‘HERO OF NIAGARA’ himself, this featured Monsieur Tournain, ‘The great Dragon Tamer’, who:

‘will make his Terrific Flight across the Ground at an elevation of 70 feet. The Illumination of the Grounds will of the most novel and brilliant description during the evening. There will, at intervals, be given Vocal and Instrumental Concerts, Balloon Ascents, &c., &c. Four MILITARY BANDS are engaged for the occasion. Arrangements have been made by all the Railway Companies to run Cheap Trains. Excursionists admitted at half price on showing their Railway Ticket. No Train will leave Leicester until after Blondin’s performance.

The Journal reported on 13 September that Blondin ‘went through a number of astounding feats with wonderful courage and daring. The rope, which was of about the thickness of a man’s wrist, and about eighty feet long, was attached to timbers at each end of the ground, at an elevation of about twenty feet, and kept steady by guys and sandbags. About half-past six o’clock Blondin ascended the platform, and walked quickly along the rope, and, on returning, stood on his head midway, and went through a number of other antics. He then bound a handkerchief over his eyes, and enveloped himself in a sack, and thus proceeded to re-cross the rope, every now and then dropping one leg over the side of the rope, which at first caused some slight expressions of alarm, but was soon succeeded by cheering.

‘A barrow was next wheeled across, and he then proceeded to the accomplishment of the last and greatest of his feats — carrying a man across on his back, which he did amid the silence and anxious expectations of the lookers-on, which burst forth in a prolonged cheer on his arrival at the end of his perilous pathway. Blondin then descended, and the curious gathered round him in crowds to get a glimpse of this extraordinary man. There was a fair attendance of spectators, who manifested their satisfaction and delight, by repeated rounds of applause. Young Wilder [on the Flying Trapeze] and Monsieur Tournain also exhibited their fantastic performances with great success. Military bands were in attendance and played during the evening, and a magnificent display of fireworks, by Professor Wilder, brought the evening’s entertainment to a close’.

In 1859 Blondin had become the first person to walk a rope across Niagara Falls. In 1861, at the request of the Prince of Wales, he recreated his Niagara ‘stunts’, including walking on stilts and somersaults, at the Crystal Palace, and performed there another 12 times in the following year. Shortly after his appearance in Leicester he left for Russia to perform at the Court of St Petersburg. He survived every danger and died peacefully in 1897 at the age of 75.
