Specific local titles. We are grateful to the various editors and publishers for their donations:

East Midland History and Heritage
Harborough Historian
Hinckley Historian
Rutland Record

Thoroton Society Transactions (Nottinghamshire). In a long-standing exchange arrangement, we have received Vol. 120 2016. We still await the volumes for 2003 and 2007 – 2015.

Vaughan Archaeological and Historical Society. This society has now ceased. The Library only has one hard copy of its Transactions (no. 21 1974), so we are grateful to Keith Hammersley, a member of both Societies, for the generous donation of a DVD (for use on a PC/laptop) which has files from 1947 – 2017 of Transactions and Newsletters.

De Montfort University Special Collections archives and rare books has published its first Newsletter (Nov. 2017) and an information leaflet. Both are available for reference in the Library. Future newsletters should be received.

Civil War

Thanks to the good offices of Cynthia Brown we are grateful to one of her students for the donation of a collection of material relating to the Civil War in Leicestershire and the East Midlands. It consists of books, pamphlets and photocopies of periodical articles and extracts from books: a ready-made research resource.

Aubrey Stevenson, Hon. Librarian.
LAHS HISTORY FAIR
On 15 April 15 LAHS held its third successful History Fair at Beaumanor Hall in Woodhouse, attended by an estimated 2500 – 3000 visitors. It commemorated the centenary of the First World War in Leicestershire and Rutland, with 34 local history groups, projects, and museums exhibiting their research into how the conflict affected their locality. Joe Hall reports that ‘a great day was had by visitors and stallholders alike. Many stallholders added new members to their organisations, and one noted that by the end of the day they had spoken to 110 adults and 20 children! The various talks were also very popular, covering the themes of Leicester at war; the role of local suffragettes; a midland tank crew at Passchendaele; the history of the 2nd Leicestershire Regiment; and a recreation of the court-martial of the 1st Leicestershire Regiment’s Joseph Nisbet, who was executed in 1918.

Talks on other topics were also very well received. These included a roundup archaeology in Leicester after Richard III; an introduction to the county’s beautiful Swithland slate headstones; a delve into the life of local knight and notorious ‘hothead’ Sir William Turville; and a look at Viking influence in the East Midlands. The talks on the Vikings and Archaeology after Richard III were so popular that we will be offering them again as part of the Festival of Archaeology later in the summer. The History Fair also included an archaeology marquee in the grounds of Beaumanor Hall, where the Roman mosaic unearthed at the Stibbe site in Leicester city centre drew a large crowd of visitors, and the object handling and finds identification stalls were also busy throughout the day. Feedback from the day was very positive, with many visitors saying they would like to see more events in future which bring together local groups to publicly display the county’s history.

LAHS TREASURER
Our present Treasurer, David Howell, has decided to stand down at the November AGM. This is a key position within the Society and, if possible, we would like it to be filled by an existing member. The role involves managing the Society’s accounts, timely payment of invoices, and liaising with our accountants and financial advisors. The ideal person will have some accountancy or other financial experience, but this is not an absolute requirement. David is happy to provide more information, so please speak with him at one of our lectures, email him at treasurer@lahs.org.uk, or telephone him on 0116 254 1395 or 07940 842184.

LAHS AND THE NEW GENERAL DATA PROTECTION REGULATIONS
Members may be aware that new General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) are coming into force in May 2018, and these require us to explain how your individual data will be used. LAHS holds very limited personal data: names, postal and email addresses, gift aid declaration and if you supplied it, your telephone number. These are held and used only to fulfil our obligations to members, that is, to alert you to meetings and relevant events, supply copies of our publications and remind you of overdue subscriptions. We are happy to provide any member with a copy of their information, and to correct any errors.

Personal information will not be provided to any other organisation without your express permission. If you terminate your membership, your digital data will be deleted from our systems. If your membership has lapsed but we have not received any indication from you whether you wish to remain or cease to be a member, your information will be deleted 24 months after the end of the last subscription year for which you have paid.
NEW – LAHS POSTCARDS

After re-digitising older volumes of Transactions, it was noted that the higher resolution scans had reproduced the drawings which accompanied various articles in sufficiently high quality to allow them to be printed as stand-alone images. As a trial run, we have taken three such images and had them printed as postcards (A6, glossy, 235 g/m² card weight), which we are selling for £1 each.

The Leicester Castle sketches (top right) were taken from Vol.22 (1941-42), and were drawn by Mr. S.H. Barnet, a friend of the article’s author Mr Levi Fox. The Ulverscroft Priory image (middle right) has been created from the Priory plans published in Vol.18 (1933-35) by William and Margaret E. Keay. In the original the tiles are shown as border decoration to the main plan and section drawings. The Rothley Temple image (bottom right) was published in Vol.12 (1920-21) in the article ‘The History of Rothley’, by T.H. Fosbrooke, G. Farnham, Rev. J. Wallace Watts, and A. Hamilton Thompson.

To purchase a postcard, send a self-addressed envelope to the below address. Please include a note stating which postcard(s) you would like, and how many, and enclose a cheque for the total amount (£1 each).

EMPIRE SOLDIERS – A SOUTH ASIAN STORY
Leicester-based arts and heritage group Metro-Boulot-Dodo (MBD) has received funding from the Heritage Lottery Fund to research the stories of South Asian troops in World War I, migration from South Asia to the UK, and the 100 years since, and is looking for people to interview about their family history or own personal experiences. The research will be used to make a virtual reality film as part of its ‘Empire Soldiers’ series, which already features a film made in 2017 focusing on the stories of Caribbean soldiers in World War I. This can be viewed at http://mbd.limited/empire-soldiers or on Youtube at Error! Hyperlink reference not valid. If you can help, please contact Charlotte Angharad, tel 07397 003582/0116 2533439, or email charlotte@metro-boulot-dodo.com. There is more information about the project at www.metro-boulot-dodo.com.

GREEN PLAQUE SCHEME – UPDATE
A plaque in honour of Lady Florence Dixie, author, explorer and campaigner for women’s rights, will be unveiled in May 2018 at her former home Bosworth Hall, now Bosworth Hall Hotel. A new round of nominations will soon be going to a public vote. For details, see www.leicestershire.gov.uk/leisure-and-community/history-and-heritage/green-plaque-awards-scheme.

FORTHCOMING EVENTS

EDUCATION IN IBSTOCK – FREE EXHIBITION
Saturday 9 June 2018, 10 am – 12.30 pm, Centenary Room, The Palace Community Centre, High Street, Ibstock, LE67 6LH; Saturday 16 June 2018, 10 am – 12 midday, Ibstock Baptist Church, Chapel Street, Ibstock, LE67 6HF

This year marks the bicentenary of the building and opening of Ibstock’s National School. Leicestershire VCH are presently researching the history of Ibstock, for publication as a paperback in 2020, and marking this event by a special exhibition on the history of Ibstock’s schools. The National School was not the first school in the village – schoolmasters are recorded in the 17th century, and there was a school house by 1731 – but these early schools were very small and dependent upon attracting schoolmasters requiring no salary beyond what could be earned from fee-paying pupils. The exhibition will trace the development of all of Ibstock’s schools, from the 17th century to the present day, including the early schools, Sunday schools, secondary schools and the Mining and Technical Education Centre. It will cover not just the administrative history of the schools, but also the social side – the pupils, their teachers and how the schools provided free breakfasts for children during mining strikes in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The exhibition is free, and there will be a free competition with a prize. Ibstock Historical Society will also be present on 9 June, and there will be a small display about the history of Ibstock’s Baptist community at the event on 16 June. Refreshments will be available at both venues.
FRIENDS OF THE RECORD OFFICE FOR LEICESTERSHIRE, LEICESTER AND RUTLAND
Annual General Meeting, Wednesday 16 May, 7.30 pm at the Record Office
This will be followed by ‘It just came apart in my hands’: or looking after your family memorabilia – a talk by Karenna Fry, Archive Conservator.

FESTIVAL OF ARCHAEOLOGY 2018
The 2018 Festival of Leicestershire and Rutland Archaeology will be launched in the grounds of Jewry Wall Museum and at St Nicholas Church on Sunday 8 July. Over 50 events will take place from 14 – 30 July. See www.leicsfieldworkers.co.uk/festival-of-archaeology-2018/ for more details. LAHS is contributing two lectures to the programme – see below. Doors open and cash bar from 7pm, talk begins 7.30pm. Booking essential – tel 0116 2532569.

The Danelaw Saga: How the Vikings Never Left the East Midlands
Dr Roderick Dale, The Guildhall, Leicester, Monday 16 July, 7 - 8.30pm, £4.50
Without the Vikings the East Midlands would be a very different place to the one we know and recognise today. Dr Roderick Dale will look at the Vikings’ impact on the region, examine the many ways in which their influence shaped the various East Midlands identities, and show how – contrary to popular belief - they never really left our shores.

Archaeology after Richard III: Recent Archaeological Discoveries in Leicester
Mathew Morris, The Guildhall, Leicester, Monday 23 July: 7 - 8.30pm, £4.50
Every facet of Leicester’s rich history survives to some degree beneath the city’s streets waiting to be rediscovered. In this talk, Mathew Morris looks at some of the latest projects carried out in and around Leicester’s historic core by University of Leicester Archaeological Services (ULAS). From Roman cemeteries to a medieval friary, castle, and 17th century civil war defences, recent discoveries showcase Leicester’s rich and fascinating history.

11TH CENTURY STIRRUP MOUNTS FROM PECKLETON

Wendy Scott, Finds Liaison Office for the Leicestershire Portable Antiquities Scheme, writes about these finds: These Anglo-Scandinavian objects are amongst my favourite things to record and are very interesting for several reasons. Firstly, a pair of stirrup mounts is an extremely rare find (PAS ref. LEIC-8C54F0 and LEIC-8D1AC0). We only know of one other probable pair, from Bicester, Oxfordshire (BERK-2339E4 and BERK-230A90). It is very difficult to accidently lose a pair of these mounts in the same location, so they may be a site loss or may even indicate a burial.

Secondly, this new pair is a rare type (Williams class A, type 8 variant) with a triangular form and very angular decoration. Two similar ones are featured in David Williams’ book, Late Saxon Stirrup Strap Mounts, one from Wooton Warwen, Warwickshire and one from Brewood, Staffordshire. Before the pair was found I had recorded one very similar example from Melton, Leicestershire (LEIC-AF8883). A quick search on the database revealed a small cluster of 11 similar mounts, most from the Midlands, except for (LVPL2270) from Cheshire and a very worn example from Southwold (SF-5883A1). Of the nine from the Midlands, four have been found in Leicestershire. One from North Warwickshire (WMID-8EF778) has the same shape and raised border as this pair, but its projections have three bulges, perhaps an attempt at an animal head? Others do have clear animal heads, with no sign of geometric panels. One of these is from Bottesford, Leics. (LIN-CED111) with foliate decoration and is very similar to one from Swineshead, Lincs. (LANCUM-70FE8E). There is even one from the aptly named village of Styrrup, North Nottinghamshire (SWYOR-918CD4).
Finally, because of the good practice of finders, I know they were found in a large scatter of early Medieval and Medieval material. This includes a good collection of spindle whorls of a form thought to date to the later early medieval period (700-1100AD). Very close to the mounts was a penny of William the Conqueror (LEIC-40F5AD) and a probable early medieval mount (LEIC-A19EA9). To the south we have an interesting 11th C. silver brooch (WMID-B1C4E3) with a runic inscription. The area has a good scatter of medieval finds, including coins dating to 12th – 14th centuries. This assemblage is very informative when placed in the landscape. To the north of the scatter we have the medieval (14th C.) church of St Mary Magdalene, which has a Norman font, hinting at an earlier church. This is now stranded in fields to the south of its village, where another stirrup mount was found (LEIC-C97582). This scatter of early medieval material could suggest an early manor site, or that the origins of the village lie in the 9th or 10th Century (it is listed in Domesday as ‘Pechintone’ – 4 households). It could also indicate that it’s a shrunken medieval village or that focus of settlement has moved north. To view the objects mentioned please go to www.finds.org.uk/database.

The Portable Antiquities Scheme is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary as a national programme. It is run by the British Museum and National Museum Wales to encourage the recording of archaeological objects found by members of the public in England and Wales. Finds recorded with the Scheme help advance knowledge of the history and archaeology of England and Wales. Follow #PAS15 on Instagram and Twitter to see our best discoveries or visit http://finds.org.uk/treasure/advice/treasure20 for a list of all the institutions taking part in Treasure20 and the Treasures they have on display.
RECENT PUBLICATIONS

BEAUMANOR WAR AND PEACE:
THE CURZON HERRICK YEARS 1915 - 1939

This new history of Beaumanor Hall has recently been published by LAHS Committee member Caroline Wessel. ‘Until now’, she writes: ‘very little has been known about life at Beaumanor in the Edwardian era, during WW1, or in the 1920s.; but recent extensive research, unexpected access to revealing private correspondence, contact with present-day relatives, and the discovery of a huge hoard of hitherto uncatalogued documents have uncovered some astonishing – and even shocking – facts’. The book explores the First World War at national, social, local and personal levels, both the world of military combat and the home front around Beaumanor, along with the lives of William Curzon -who inherited the Beaumanor estates in 1915 - his wife, friends, contemporaries and local families. The 1920s Beaumanor Visitors’ Book, whose 757 signatures include famous people from almost every walk of life, is used to recreate the lavish post-war parties at the Hall. The official launch event in April was hosted by the Chairman of the County Council, and attended by the Lord Lieutenant, other civic dignitaries and guests including Mr Monny Curzon-Herrick, whose father was the last person to inherit Beaumanor in 1945. The buffet supper included ideas from some 1920s Fortnum & Mason (F&M) menus, as these were supplied to the author by the F&M archivist for inclusion in the publication: Quorn railway archives record that F&M hampers were sent down to Beaumanor by train for their lavish house parties! The book is 288 pages long, with 16 pages of illustrations, and costs £9. It can be obtained from Beaumanor Hall, Old Woodhouse LE12 8TX; The Café Next Door, 94 Main Street, Woodhouse Eaves LE12 8RZ; Quorn and Woodhouse Railway, Quorn, LE12 8AJ Leicestershire County Museums and the Record Office for Leicestershire, Leicester and Rutland at Wigston; and Clarendon Books, 144 Clarendon Park Road, Leicester LE2 3AE.

HIGH FLYING AROUND - MEMORIES OF THE 1960S MUSIC SCENE

Something a little different... Colin Hyde writes of Shaun Knapp’s book High Flying Around: ‘While the Leicester of the 1960s might not have spawned pop groups as famous as the Beatles or the Rolling Stones, it was a vibrant scene that featured many talented individuals and groups. The book charts the growth of local group Legay from their origins in 1966 to their eventual demise as the nationally known Gypsy in 1974. The second half looks at other aspects of the 1960s scene in Leicester, including the venues, bands, individuals, and local management agency Klock. The story of Legay is similar to many other bands, but this is a Leicester story and the music, fashion, fights, drugs and quests for glory are all told very well. Venues such as the Nite Owl and the Burlesque, and bands such as Pesky Gee, are often remembered and talked about, but this is possibly the first time they have written about in any detail’. The text combines personal memories and original research and commentary, and is illustrated with black and white photos. It is published by DB Publishing, 2017, 208pp, ISBN 9781780915500, £14.99.
A HISTORICAL FOOTNOTE
LAHS started its existence in 1855 as the Leicestershire Architectural and Archaeological Society. Here is an extract from an article by Rev. Edward Trollope F.S.A., rector of Leasingham, Lincolnshire, on ‘The use and abuse of red bricks’, published in the first volume of its Transactions (1855-56).

‘BRICKS, and especially "red" bricks, are almost always mentioned with great disrespect in connexion with architecture; so that, when admirers of that noble science hear upon their travels, of a town, or a church, or, indeed, of any building constructed of brick, they usually say to their drivers, "On, on! there is no pleasure or even repose for our own eyes there; do not deposit us in a locality where one side of the way is glowing, with a coarsely ruddy aspect, at an equally ruddy opposite row of houses; or where a church of the same hue was built some eighty years ago, whose smooth, thin walls, meagre slate roof, and Venetian east window already droop across our imagination to the depression of our spirits, or to the irritation of our optic nerves, according to the character of our respective temperaments, before so unpleasant a sight has again been forced upon our actual sense of vision."

‘Bricks, however, are not only a necessity, but a building material for which a deep debt of gratitude has been justly due from a most remote period to the present time; moreover, it will be my endeavour to demonstrate how they may be made to please the eye of him whose apprehension of colour is most complete, by their judicious use, combined with a slight distribution of other tints serving to relieve the monotony of their usual hue. A stoneless district compels its inhabitants to use brick as a building material, or else something worse. Babylon, we know, at a very early period in the world's history betook itself to brick making, and so have all cities situate on alluvial plains, such as those of Assyria and Egypt; whilst the Romans, whose powers of adaptation are still a wonder to us, became so enamoured of the use of wide bricks from their utility in forming vaultings, bonding-courses, arches, &c., that—even in localities where stone was good and plentiful—they still practised the lessons taught them by the forced use of bricks, and inserted layers of these throughout their stone structures, as may be seen at the so-called Mint Wall at Lincoln, &c.

‘Nor were bricks repudiated by our Saxon fore-fathers, as evinced by Brixworth church, Northants., and that at Dover within the castle precincts; whilst their occasional use in the erection of costly buildings has ever since prevailed all over Europe, as well as in the East, and very often in preference to stone. Of the twelfth century brickwork, St. Botolph's Priory, Colchester, offers a remarkable example in England, and the church of St. Foi, at Agen, in the south of France. Of the close of the following century, Little Wenham Hall, in Suffolk, presents a very pleasing specimen...’

Other articles from this edition of Transactions include ‘Melton and the Reformation’ by James Thompson; ‘Tradesmen’s tokens’ and ‘Merchants’ marks’ by Thomas North; and ‘The judicious restoration of village churches’ by Vincent Wing. This and other volumes of Transactions are available online at www.le.ac.uk/lahs/publications/transactions.html.
